
7/29 The story 'passage into light' I like to imagine myself as main character Andrei and take his lessons to heart. several references to him being like a bear are made. one thing it mentions him by 3 mothers and I sit thinking of my 'self suffocation' while I was younger, and everyone else was more concerned w/ sleep, I would grasp and claw @ a way out of my tent. I wish I had someone who could've just laid and stayed @ the stars w/ me and comforted me w/ their presence. Instead I was shamed and silenced. But the breathtaking claustrophobia of being trapped and alone in the dark w/ sleeping bodies ~~~ is the worst hell imaginable.

and now I can relate w/ the 'wraith' next door.

how interesting I find it, to be that only red/orange/copper head hairs come out when I brush my head- so much so that I save them. It is now a fun 'frantic' habit to pass the time - seek and destroy these infiltrators (!!?)
